

Simone Caggiula – Bio

SPACES FOR PEOPLE: QUALITY OF DESIGN.

What design means: listening, understanding, rethinking. Thinking about environments and not just rooms, spaces and not just volumes, proportions and not just dimensions.

I believe in a cross-disciplinary approach, in continuous and constructive dialogue with users, clients, and collaborators: the success of a project depends on the ability to develop timely solutions and broad-scope proposals joined with presence on the building site.

I always develop projects where people live well, work at their best, relax, and receive care; I transform environments to make them functional and contemporary, essential and correct, tailored to human beings and lives.

I am sure that design quality makes a difference: I do believe that high-quality architecture stems from thoughtful design and spatial care, rather than high costs or mere compliance with regulations. The most correct solution is the best-designed one, often the most essential, and hardly ever the most expensive.

ABOUT ME. Constantly looking for a new perspective.

My passion for architecture results from study and professional experiences. I had the fortune and privilege of working with professionals who made me understand the real value of my work: people's well-being in relation to the spaces they live in.

I'm curious; the need to understand how things work leads me to constantly integrate my skills into fields that are complementary (or unrelated) to my own.

My way of tackling challenges? With commitment, study, and dedication; in a single word: professionalism.

What people say about me: passionate about my job.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE.

I was born in Turin in 1976; after classical studies, in 2001 I graduated from the Facoltà di Architettura – Politecnico di Torino with a thesis on urban public spaces reuse.

In 2006 (until the studio's closure) I joined Beppe Maggiora Architetti as professional; with a cross-disciplinary approach, I tackled projects ranging from interior design to the urban scale.

In 2014 I opened my own studio, carrying forward the same policies of quality in the design process and attention to the needs and well-being of the user.

I'm a freelance architect, registered with the Ordine degli Architetti di Torino since 2004.

Design quality makes a difference!
